Eight Tenths is Enough.

八分でいい。

Eight Tenths is Enough.

腹八分目に医者いらず。

Eat to eight-tenths full and you won't need a doctor.

We took an old Japanese line about food and rebuilt a nutrition app around it.

Hachibu is what happens when a tracker stops asking you to be perfect, and starts trusting you to know what enough feels like.

THE PRINCIPLE

土台の言葉

腹八分目に
医者いらず。Hara hachi bu ni isha irazu.

Eat to eight-tenths full and you won't need a doctor.

This is not a slogan we invented. It is centuries-old Japanese folk wisdom — taught by parents over the dinner table, written on ceramics, repeated in clinics in Okinawa where Blue Zone researchers traced longevity back to one habit: stopping before full.

Western nutrition apps build on the opposite premise — that more data, more tracking, more rules produce better outcomes. We have watched a generation of users prove this is wrong. High-friction apps get deleted. Cheerleading apps get muted. Apps that moralize about food breed shame and quit-loops.

Hachibu inverts the formula. Track lightly. Stop before exhausted. Eight tenths is enough.

STRATEGIC POSITIONING

Most apps say: track everything, hit your goals.

Hachibu says: track lightly, accept yourself, let it be enough.

BRAND STORY

ブランドストーリー

Japanese desk workers carry a quiet exhaustion. They've been told to optimize their bodies for a decade. Most apps make it worse. Hachibu makes it lighter.

THE INSIGHT

We talked to forty Japanese workers under thirty-five who had quit a calorie tracker in the last twelve months. The pattern was remarkable. None of them quit because they achieved their goal. They quit because the act of tracking itself became a second job.

Their wish was paradoxical: they wanted to know more about their body, but they wanted to think about it less.

THE OPPORTUNITY

The space between 'I have no idea what I ate' and 'I weighed every gram' is enormous. It is also empty of good products.

Hachibu sits in that space — a tracker that rewards a quick tap, accepts an approximation, and never asks a question whose answer can be inferred from your past meals.

It is, deliberately, the laziest serious nutrition app on the market.

AUDIENCE

ミオ / Mio, 29

Marketing assistant · Tokyo · Tōzai Line commuter

- ・ コンビニ昼食 4-5 days/week
- ・ Tried MyFitnessPal twice — both quit within 4 days
- ・ Owns a smart scale she has used twice
- ・ Doesn't want a 'diet'. Wants to feel less heavy by summer.
- ・ Her relationship with her body is cautious, not hateful, not celebratory. Just quiet.

WHAT MIO TEACHES US

入力負荷を最小化

Minimize input load.

Every tap she has to take is a tap closer to deletion.

評価しない

Don't evaluate.

Mio is sensitive to being judged.
So is everyone.

静かに役立つ

Quietly useful.

She doesn't want a coach. She wants a small tool.

ARCHETYPE

ブランドの人格

PRIMARY · 89%

MESSAGING HIERARCHY

メッセージ階層

01 · TAGLINE

八分でいい。

Eight tenths is enough.

The whole brand in five characters.

02 · PROMISE

体のことを、軽く知る。

Know your body, lightly.

What we do for you, in a sentence.

03 · FUNCTIONAL

マクロ栄養を、3秒で。

Macros in three seconds.

What we do, mechanically.

04 · POSITIONING

頑張りすぎない食事ログ。

The nutrition log that doesn't demand perfection.

Where we sit relative to MFP, Cal AI, MacroFactor.

EDITORIAL RULES

編集ルール

01 Never describe a body type as good, bad, ideal, or concerning.

Use only the neutral axis labels (脂肪 × 筋量, 少なめ／ふつう／多め).

02 No cheerleading.

We don't say がんばろう, ファイト, or 目標達成しよう.

03 Food carries no moral weight.

We avoid ヘルシー (judgmental) and ご褒美 (transactional).

04 Success states do not surprise.

A meal logged is just logged. No confetti. No emoji.

05 Numbers are presented without color-warnings.

Unless physically dangerous (kcal < 1500/1200), we don't flag.

06 Defaults are neutral defaults.

The system never presumes your goal until you set one.

DIRECTION 01 — RADICAL WORDMARK

ロゴ・方向 01

01a · PRIMARY HORIZONTAL

01b · SYMBOL ONLY

01c · VERTICAL STACK

CONSTRUCTION

Drawn on an 8×8 grid. Stroke width 5/8 unit at top, narrowing to 4/8 at the foot. Bottom serif-feet are flat-cut (modernist deviation from traditional Mincho). Use this direction in every primary cultural-Japanese context.

DIRECTION 02 — ENSO SYMBOL

ロゴ・方向 02

02a · SYMBOL

02b · HORIZONTAL

02c · REVERSED

CONSTRUCTION

An ensō (円相) — the meditative incomplete circle of Zen calligraphy — intentionally drawn with a small opening at the upper-right. The opening encodes the brand thesis: not 100%, eight-tenths. Inner kanji sits at 0.62 of circle diameter. Use when a more graphic, app-friendly mark is needed.

DIRECTION 03 — TILE MATRIX

ロゴ・方向 03

03a · TILE ALONE

03b · INLINE

03c · PATTERN

CONSTRUCTION

A 3×3 dot grid with the bottom two cells removed — a graphic refrain of the 9-cell body-type matrix at the heart of the product. Two missing dots = 8/10. The grid IS the product made into a brandable shape. Use for in-product UI accents, loading states, and motion graphics.

DO'S & DON'TS

使用ルール

MINIMUM SIZE / CLEAR SPACE

Min size: 16px combined / 12px symbol-only (digital). 12mm / 8mm (print). Clear space = the height of the 八 character on all four sides.

DO · Use approved colors only

DO · Reverse on Sumi is allowed

DON'T · Stretch or skew

DON'T · Add shadow or glow

DON'T · Recolor into accents

DON'T · Rotate the mark

01 Choose silence over sentence.

When in doubt, write less.

02 The user is not a project.

Don't manage them. Be available.

03 Avoid color whenever possible.

Color is for moments, not chrome.

04 Don't celebrate consistency.

Make it expected. No streak trophies.

05 Never compare users.

No social, no leaderboards, no shared goals.

06 The mark, over the moment.
